* indicates an establishment for which we have no record of a passing test period after the last Year of Failure listed in this chart.

The data used to make this chart ended in December 2005. USDA typically conducts at least one test period per year, at each establishment. They may conduct more than one. Passing test periods are not listed.

Each package of raw poultry must display the establishment number in either the inspection legend oval or, by itself, on other labeling material.
