

GOVERNOR JOSH SHAPIRO:

People across Pennsylvania, from Dimock to Braddock, Marcus Hook to Plum Borough, and Wyalusing to Washington Crossing are speaking.

Photo: Flickr.com Gov. Tom Wolf, CC-BY 2.0

Hear them testify to environmental and climate injustice in Harrisburg this Monday.

Governor Shapiro, people across Pennsylvania have been sharing the stories of their suffering at the hands of the fossil fuel industry. And they've been sharing their concerns about what the future holds as the climate crisis caused by the same industry intensifies. If you had heard the people's voices, you would be taking swift, decisive climate action. You would not be supporting the industry's false climate solutions, but would be calling them out for what they are and rejecting them. It is clear that ours are not the voices that have captured your attention. That needs to change. And the change starts at the People's Hearing on Climate Change in the PA Capitol's East Wing on October 2. We call on you to be there.

Read the invitation signed by 37 orgs and more than 3,600 individuals at

Or visit bit.ly/PAPeoplesHearing